I recently went through something kind of bad (inactivity notice....again)

I won't explain the details here, but it was on discord, and I think I may stop posting (already I know). It really creeped me out and made me uncomfortable. I am sorry I'm already doing this. But I need some time to think about how I want to deal with the situation. As it has left me feeling.....scared (tho, I feel ridiculous for feeling scared). I am seeking help from some discord friends, but I may just want some time to think about it.

Hope you understand.

Hi! I don’t think we have met, but if it made you uncomfortable, then it’s good that you’re sorting it out; and know that it isn’t ridiculous at all to feel scared. Hope things go well :)

I understand, Nova. I hope you'll be able to figure it out. And don't feel ridiculous about feeling scared. When things like this come around, we tend to have emotions we don't like to feel, but sometimes they help us. (And I'm sorry if this didn't help any better. I'm terrible with words.)

It's just fine to be scared of stuff that happens online. You're talking to somebody you can't see. I personally always like to have somebody that I can make eye contact with to talk to. Take all the time you need, and we won't make you discuss this any further than you really want to.

@Atlas: While what happened is a reminder on how to be safe, I don't feel quite ready to share it here yet. However when I feel the time comes or if they do something similar again, I will explain the whole situation.
